New Haven, Conn., April 12.—Trapped by barred windows and metal doors and caught by a back draft and incinerated during the partial destruction of the New Haven county jail today, three of their comrades were almost miraculously saved through the heroism of other firemen who were outside. The bodies of the six men were found this afternoon after the debris cooled. Many other firemen were severely burned, but aside from five sent to the hospitals all remained at work owing to the great task before the fire fighting force of the city.

The Dead.
Captain C. L. Chapman of Truck 1, Lieutenant William J. Doherty of Truck 1, Lieutenant John Buckley of Truck 1, Lieutenant James T. Cullen, James M. O'Neill and Charles H. O'Neill of Engine company No. 4.

Seriously Injured.
Lieutenant A. E. Wilcox, Thomas J. Vaughan of Truck 1, Captain James J. O'Neill, Captain Charles H. O'Neill of Engine company No. 4 and Cornelius Shugrue, lieutenant of Truck No. 1.

Policemen Doran Saw Three Men Disappear.
The death of three men is accounted for by Police Officer Doran. Three of the men of the truck and were fighting their way through the cell room in the jail proper to the general workshop of the prison. It seemed as if the men were in a gasolene, caused a back draft which killed the three men. The three men were seen by the firemen as they were being rescued from the shop. Officer Doran had seen the flames and then came the sheet of flame and the men were gone.

Six Men Hemmed in a Corner.
Six men in the group were hemmed in a corner. Three made their way to a third story barred window. Captain O'Neill, Hussey and Wilcox were the men. Outside the firemen saw them and turned streams on to protect them. With faces pressed to the bars they called for help. Captain O'Neill giving aid to the men. Suddenly the men were lifted and the men saw the sky. Smoke and flame followed the new outburst. Up went the men. The men were rescued in another place through the bravery of Chief Fancher's chauffeur. The men were rescued through the bravery of Chief Fancher's chauffeur. The men were rescued through the bravery of Chief Fancher's chauffeur.

Financial Losses $200,000.
The death toll at this fire was the heaviest New Haven has ever known. The financial losses will run to $200,000.

Militia Called Out.
Three companies of the Second Infantry, Connecticut National guard, were called out at 11 o'clock by Chief Geddes upon authority of the governor, and Major Ball placed in command. The militia were called out to guard the jail and the city property.

246 Male and 12 Female Prisoners Released.
During the fire, when it looked as if the entire jail was doomed, 246 male and 12 female prisoners were marched out in order and were taken to the town, the former to police precincts and headquarters and the latter to the city hall.

Fire Started in Chair Factory.
The county jail, like many penal institutions of New England built years ago, had an imposing front section in which the high sheriff lives. On each wing are offices. The middle structure, extending north, three stories in height, contained the cells in tiers. Behind this was an annex used as a general workshop of the prison, nearly 100 feet square.

Prisoner Gave the Alarm.
A prisoner gave the alarm, and at once 175 workmen were marched out of the workshop and front section in which the high sheriff lives. On each wing are offices. The middle structure, extending north, three stories in height, contained the cells in tiers. Behind this was an annex used as a general workshop of the prison, nearly 100 feet square.

Firemen Gave the Alarm.

Back Draft Killed Three.
It was to check the fire in the general workshop that men from Truck No. 1 and Engine company No. 4 were sent into the jail. They had got through into the workshop with their hose when the back draft shut off their return.

The Bodies Found.
In the late afternoon the firemen found the bodies among the twisted debris and the charred beams in this part of the jail. The bodies were found in the third floor, but the others had slid down as the floor gave way.

Extremely Spectacular Blaze.
The fire was extremely spectacular. The chair shops were all destroyed. The chair shops were all destroyed. The chair shops were all destroyed.
